

We did much better this week. The meetings we had on tuesdays and thursdays really let us all know what was going on elsewhere on the project and gave us all a chance to do more work together. We used the feedback from last time to start creating a better looking UI using the bootstrap framework.

The only issue we had this week was sometimes having two people work on the same thing which meant that we had two versions of certain elements.

Everyone seemed to contribute as much as they could and we finished everything we set out to finish.